

What it means to live a life of fidelity in community today as young sisters

Living a life of fidelity in community today as a young Sister means following a Divine call to love God and serve others wholeheartedly. It allows us to be open to the movements of the Spirit and signs of the times by being witnesses of God's goodness and trusting in His providential care for our community and for the world.

Community life has both its good times and rough edges as we impact on one another but together we can live it out in loyalty, faith, and love. By living out fidelity in community we are called to live a life of loyalty and faithfulness.

We accept the inevitable crosses in community life for the joy of living with woman who share the same love for God.

Jesus gives us an example of how to serve when he washes the feet of his disciples on the night of the Passover and instructs us together with the disciples to go out and do the same.

As young Sisters we are called to serve in this way, where we witness God's goodness and providential care to one another in community. As Sisters who are called to be one in community, we wash one another's feet by praying, supporting, loving, and caring for each other. Meaningful and joyful community living does not come automatically, like any relationship it needs to be nurtured and cared for, therefore it requires commitment and loyalty on our part in community life.

Our joy in community living comes from learning how to love and be loved.

The joy in living community life can be testified in the following words:

"By this all people will know that you are my disciples if you have love for one another."
"John 13:35

A community is mission and for mission therefore Pope Francis says:

"A communion that evangelize. "
